FEDERAL BENEFITS DETERMINATION Continued....

ABLE ACCOUNTS COMPARED TO OTHER SAVINGS VEHICLES

Q: How does an ABLÉ account compare to a special needs trust?

- A:
- Special needs trusts are regulated at the state level. They must be reviewed and updated if a family moves to another state.
 - Special needs trusts are taxed at the highest individual tax rate. They can be expensive to set up and maintain.
 - Special needs trusts do not have contribution limits. The allowed expenditures are not limited as ABLÉ accounts.
 - If a special needs trust is set up as a third party trust, then a Medicaid payback is not required.

Q: How does an ABLÉ account differ from a pooled trust?

- A:
- Pooled trusts are regulated at the state level. They are fully taxable and require set up and maintenance costs.
 - A portion of the money left in the account after the beneficiary's death stays in the account for other participants before the Medicaid payback applies.
 - There are no contribution limits for pooled trusts.
 - The allowed expenditures from a pooled trust are broader than with an ABLÉ account.
 - Setup and maintenance of pooled trust are generally done by disability organizations.
 - The set up fees can be less expensive than special needs trusts.
 - The organizations that maintain pooled trusts are familiar with how funds can be used on behalf of the beneficiary.

ABLE ACCOUNTS COMPARED TO OTHER SAVINGS VEHICLES Continued...

Q: Can I have an ABLE account AND a Special Needs Trust Fund, a Wholly Discretionary Trust Fund, or a Supplemental Services Trust Fund?

A: Yes. All are tools for disability-related support and established for the same beneficiary.

TRANSFERS & ROLL-OVERS

Q: Can I make a tax-free transfer of funds from an existing 529 college savings account to an ABLE account?

A: Not at this time. Under the federal ABLE regulations, this type of transfer is not considered a qualified higher education expense.
